Senior Technician – Protein Purification

You are a scientist with 3 to 8 years of experience in laboratory technical work in purification of recombinant proteins at bench- to pilot-scale, with industry experience in:

- protein biochemistry
- purification techniques
- quantitative and qualitative analyses
- protein expression an additional asset.

As a member of ERA's scientific team, you will work in a dynamic interdisciplinary environment, and will plan, perform, report, present and trouble-shoot experiments under the guidance of senior scientist. Your responsibility will focus purification and characterization and process optimization

You are an autonomous technician comfortable and efficient in a result-oriented team environment; you have the aptitude to organize and summarize experimental data according to notebook procedures. Your tasks might include providing technical information and custom service to external partners and clients.

Your formal training includes a science degree in biochemistry, biology or pharmacy, with a strong emphasis in protein biochemistry, ideally with good understanding of molecular biology. Your experience includes column chromatography, ELISA analysis and computer literacy.

The lab's languages are Catalan, Spanish and English, and reporting language is English. Proficiency in other languages is an asset.
